Enid Larson Announces Winners Of Pine Cone Conservation Awards

Miss Enid A. Larson, biology instructor at Carmel High School, has announced the winners of this year's Pine Cone Conservation Award.

First prize in the annual competition goes to a group of three students who worked out a number of problems concerning wildlife conservation. Cooperating on the project were Paul Fratessa, Pat Selfridge and Jim Kurtz.

Second prize was awarded to a group who gathered a wealth of first-hand information regarding mammals of Monterey County. They prepared an exhibition of pelts from the collection of Milton Kastor of Carmel Valley to illustrate their talk. "As a result of their work," says Miss Larson, "the class gained a wide understanding of the place of the mountain lion, the coyote and the wildcat as predators in maintaining a balance in nature." Members of the group working on this project were Dick Jennings, Xenia Kastor, West Whittaker and Don Rowe.

Third award in the contest went to a trio of students interested in studying the problems of our fishery resources. They were Pat Erwin, Jim Hicks and Randy Houghtelling. Honorable mention went to a group under the direction of Christine Conley for a report on the conservation of human resources.

The annual award is made possible through the Pine Cone to students in the high school biology department. Winners are picked on the basis of a comprehensive written report in the field of conservation education together with an oral presentation before their class.

According to Miss Larson, the 14 groups who entered projects this year turned in a "remarkably fine series of written reports"; excerpts from these reports will be printed in the Pine Cone in the near future.

"As You Like It" Cast And In Rehearsal For Early July Production

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 1, 2, 3, and again on July 8, 9, 10, As You Like It will be presented in the Forest Theater. This enchanting comedy of wit and love in the Forest of Arden is so perfectly suited to the Forest Theater that it seems strange it has not been given there long before. Yet only three of the 22 scenes have ever been staged there—two in 1912 and one in 1945. This will be the first production of the play as a whole.

Herbert Heron, who is in charge of the Festival, has assembled an unusually fine cast, including many experienced players new to the local audiences, as well as many whose work is known and admired on the Peninsula.

Gertrude Maxey is the Rosalind, a part beloved of actresses from Helen Faucit to Katherine Hepburn. Her portrayal brings out the gayety, charm and tenderness of this exquisite character. Grace Carol Kearney plays her inseparable companion, Celia, the princess who leaves her home and court and comforts to follow the fortunes of her banished friend into the wild Forest of Arden. Miss Kearney is delightful in the role.

Phebe, the scornful shepherdess, is keenly played by Katherine Kollmer, who is also the assistant director. She has had much experience in theater work, both in acting and direction.

In the capable hands of Katy Ruster the part of Audrey is sure to be a delight to the audience. Her vocal skill and her inimitable facial expressions and bodily movements strike the perfect key to this very short but famous role.

Sally Reichard would never be recognized as Hymen unless the program gave it away. So we won't mention it here.

Jacques — the melancholy Jacques—generally played by middle-aged actor-managers as a relief from Hamlet and Macbeth, will be done to a turn in the fire of Ramon Wilson's art. Those who have seen his fine performances in juvenile parts here in Carmel have a surprise coming to them.

Orlando, the brave and strong, but modest and gentle lover of Rosalind, is John Forbes, from the Permanent Headquarters of the Army Language School. His previous experience includes appearances in Anne of the Thousand Days, The Late George Apley, I Remember Mama, Lady

Carmel Poster Contest Winners First In District

Carmel High students Christine Conley and Peter Plamondon, who recently won the local American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Poster Contest, have received new laurels for their distinctive art work.

The posters submitted by Christine and Peter have each won first place in the district contest, which included entries from Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz counties. Their work will now be entered in the state-wide judging, to take place this month in San Francisco. Their posters will also be on exhibition in the city during the Legion convention in July. Should Christine's or Peter's work receive first place in the state judging, it would be eligible for entry in national competition.

The Pine Cone Recommends . . .

The Pine Cone makes no recommendations in primary elections except for non-partisan offices. The primaries should be a family affair when matters are settled within the party.

There is no official contest in the non-partisan county offices, with the exception of superior judge. No name appears on the ballot for this office, but there are three candidates in a write-in campaign: David L. Gill, Pacific Grove attorney; Jim Jeffery, justice of the municipal court in Salinas; and Stanley Lawson, Salinas attorney.

So far as we can discover, all are qualified and would make satisfactory judges. Our choice is Lawson. He has the edge in experience, with 24 years of active law practice. He seems temperamentally best suited, and our lawyer friends tell us he has a judicial mind. He has the endorsement of the Monterey County Bar Association, and when that many lawyers respect and support a fellow attorney, he must be of exceptional quality.

Governor Warren established a policy, which Governor Knight is following, of submitting names of appointees to judgeship to the local bar association for approval. If the governor of the state seeks the opinion of the local attorneys on appointments, it appears that their judgment in the matter is worth considering by citizens when they cast their votes for a judicial candidate.

Program Complete For Carmel High School's Graduation Exercises

Forty-five seniors—15 girls and 30 boys—will receive their diplomas in Carmel High School's spring graduation exercises Friday, June 11, at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium. The class of '54 is the 14th to be graduated from the high school, and also the smallest.

The capped-and-gowned seniors will file into the auditorium to Pomp and Circumstance, played by the high school orchestra. Dr. Harry C. Rogers will deliver the invocation, then Francis Schutz, vice-president of the senior class, will lead the salute to the Flag and the singing of the national anthem.

Patricia Finley will present the salutatory address. Her topic is Public Education: The Strength of the Government. Her talk will be followed by three selections sung by the senior choir: God of Our Fathers, America the Beautiful, and Every Time I Feel the Spirit.

Class speaker Howard Taggart will talk on The Practical Values of Education. He will be followed by the senior boys' glee club, directed by John Farr, singing two numbers: Stars of the Summer Night and Heart of My Heart.

Sam Smith is valedictorian for the class of '54. His talk is entitled, Should We Stress the Three R's? Allen Knight, president of the senior class, will make the presentation of the class gift.

The graduating class will be formally presented to the audience by School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell. Names of scholarship and awards winners, to be kept strictly secret until next Friday, will also be announced by Mitchell

Mission School Graduates 14

Junipero Serra School held commencement exercises yesterday evening at Carmel Mission, with 14 eighth-graders receiving their certificates from the Very Rev. Msgr. Michael D. O'Connell.

The congratulatory speech and concluding benediction were given by Msgr. O'Connell, while the graduation address was delivered by Captain James Quinn, chaplain at Fort Ord. Musical selections were sung by the Mission School Children's Choir.

Following the presentation of diplomas, scholarship and religion pins were awarded. Recipients of scholarship pins were eighth-graders Patricia Coleman, Claude Kimball and Michael Gahagan, while religion awards went to seventh-grader Barbara Coffin and eighth-grader Miriam Downie.

Members of the eighth-grade graduating class were Martha Abbott, Patricia Coleman, Katherine Cope, Yvonne Costigon, Miriam Downie, John Doud, Michael Gahagan, Claude Kimball, Patrick O'Donnell, Peter Osborne, Peter Rice, John Schiffeler, George Stoesser and Brooke Williams.

Bramblett Verifies P.O. Examination

There will be another examination for Pebble Beach Postmaster, Representative Ernest K. Bramblett informed the Pine Cone by wire from Washington yesterday.

This opens up again the contest for the job for which only two candidates qualified in the last examination, Bill Rissel of Carmel and Freeman Bates. A new examination was requested April 27 when it was found that only two had qualified, but last week Bates withdrew and the Republican Central Committee, endorsing Rissel, a Democrat, but locally popular, wired Bramblett that they were satisfied and didn't recommend another examination.

According to Bramblett's wire, there'll be an examination anyway, Republican Central Committee notwithstanding.

Bramblett is not a candidate for re-election.

Sunset Graduates 68 Eighth Graders Thursday Night

Eighth-grade diplomas will be presented to a class of 68 at Sunset School graduation exercises Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Gordon Campbell, representing the Board of Trustees, will present the certificates. Mike Raggett, president of the graduating class, will open the program by leading the salute to the Flag, and following the invocation by Father Richard J. Kinselle, will give the welcoming address.

Speaking for the graduating class, Patricia Elston will talk on Our Years at Sunset, while Neil Giarratana will discuss The Promise of the Future. The class will be presented by Sunset Principal Orville C. Rogers; class sponsors are Miss Eleanor Cence, Raymond Gere and Richard J. Pritchard.

The Sunset Orchestra and Girls' Chorus, under the direction of Arthur Holman, will present several musical numbers and the class hymn, Faith of Our Fathers, will be sung by the graduates.

PINE CONE DROPS FIRST PG LEAGUE GAME

A steady Sixth Infantry softball team from Fort Ord made good use of their four hits off Pine Cone hurler, Jim Morton, Tuesday night to hand the Coners their first defeat in Pacific Grove league play. Deadlocked at 1-1 going into the fifth frame, the soldiers erupted for three hits and four runs to tuck the game away, 5 to 1. Ord pitcher, Lee Cameron, dished out five hits to the Pine Cone swingers but scattered them effectively over the seven-inning route. A near-miss home run by Bobby Updike in the fifth inning put the damper on a threatening Pine Cone rally which could have kept the locals in the game. The stocky Carmel catcher hit a home-run labeled liner into left field with Art Harber on first base only to see the soldier left-fielder run a country mile, haul in the solid smash, and double Harber off first base — result — snuff out one threatening rally.

Dick Weer, Pine Cone center-fielder led the local hitters, collecting two solid blows in three chances with Newt Goodrich, Jim Morton, and Henry Meyers connecting for solos.

Junior Legion baseball came to Carmel for the first time last Saturday afternoon and the Carmel lads made their beginning effort a winning one by handing the visiting Santa Cruz nine an 8-3 whipping. Playing steady ball behind Mike Mosolf's four-hit pitching, the Carmel Legion took a two-run lead in the second inning and stayed in front all the way. The first two tallies were racked up on walks to Jim Konrad and Paul Fratessa, a base hit by Clyde Klaumann, and walks to Kyrk Reid and Mosolf. The village lads hopped on Santa Cruz for a four-run rally in the fourth inning as Dick Jennings connected for a single and Kyrk Reid blasted a double over the center-fielder's head to tally Mosolf, Bob Michela, and Bill McCormack who had worked the SC hurler for free passes. Final Carmel markers were posted in the sixth frame when walks to Craig Chapman and Paul Fratessa set the stage for Klaumann's second single of the afternoon. Santa Cruz got on the board in the fourth and eighth innings as Mosolf developed control trouble and walked seven hitters plus giving up a two-bagger to Hager, all-league catcher from Santa Cruz high school.

Next action for the Carmel Legion is slated for tmorrow afternoon at Hollister—game time 2:00 p.m. at the Fairgrounds.

CARMEL HIGH SENIORS ACTIVE IN SPORTS

Absent from the Carmel High sport picture next year will be eighteen seniors who have played their last game for the Red & Gray Padre teams. Led by Don Leidig, a four-sport star for most of his high school career, the class of '54 graduates a versatile selection of athletes with lettermen in all sports except tennis and golf. Missing from next year's football squad will be Leidig, Jim O'Dell, Captain Dick Schetter, Captain Dell Redding, George Hunter, Al Knight, Denny Johnson, Dennis Gerber, Howard Roloff, Tom Brosnan, Bob Douglas, Dick Ledbetter, Dick Hilgers, Bob Lemmon, and Bob Ameil. Basketballers Captain George Hunter, Leidig, Howard Taggart and Willis Lyon have peppered the hoop for the last time in a Padre uniform. The '55 track squad will miss the fine hurdling exploits of Captain Jim O'Dell, Ken Barker, and quarter-miler Leidig. Swimming coach, Warren Edwards, bids a fond farewell to his two stalwart backstrokers, Al Knight and Eric Scarlett. These two lads have been near the top in their specialties for several seasons and will be hard to replace when the '55 season rolls around. Carmel's top diver, Don Martin, will also pick up his diploma with the class of '54. Only baseballers to get their sheepskins this year are Captain Don Leidig, All-CCAL outfielder, George Hunter, and Dell Redding.

Carmel sports fans will no doubt follow the progress of these lads as they scatter to junior colleges and universities in quest of higher education and tougher athletic competition.

DON LEIDIG ON ALL-CCAL BASEBALL TEAM

By an unanimous vote of all league coaches, Don Leidig, Carmel High School senior, was honored with an outfield position on the mythical All-CCAL nine of the B division. A four-year letterman in baseball, Don led the league in hitting this year and played a steady game in the field, being guilty of only one error in the 10 league games played. Don's hitting average hovered around the 400 mark all season, reaching a peak in the King City game when the stocky outfielder hit safely in four out of five chances. Leidig played on the championship clubs of '51 and '52 and was an honorable mention for all-league honors last season.

Pacific Grove's championship team placed four men on the all-league team with Tom Hoy grabbing the catcher spot, Pete Tracey first base, Bob Lopez one of the outfield spots, and Eddie Estaban an unanimous choice for pitcher. King City placed two men, Gonzales two, Hollister one, and Gilroy one.

INVITATIONAL TOURNEY AT TENNIS CLUB SAT., SUN.

Tennis will be the major sports attraction at Pebble Beach this weekend. The annual Men's Invitational Tennis Tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday at the Pebble Beach Tennis Club, with matches getting under way at 10:00 o'clock each day.

Entered in the men's singles event are Seth Peterson, California State Champion, and Jack Frost, Tom Brown, Nick Carter, Jim Demas, Norman Brooks and Bill Hoeppner. They'll be joined in doubles matches by Larry Dee, Eddie Amark, Gerry Stratford, Bill Chandler, Timm Callwey and George Stoesser.

Also on the weekend tennis schedule is a junior girls' special event. In addition, the Pebble Beach Tennis Club will hold an inter-club tournament for its members, with men's singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

GRADUATES FROM MENLO

Kenneth A. Kiley, son of Mrs. Leo D. Tanous of Carmel, is one of the 159 graduates who will receive his degree and diploma today from Menlo School and College in Menlo Park. Ken earned his Associate in Arts degree in January.

While at Menlo, Ken has been active in campus affairs. He was vice-president of his class, chairman of the publicity committee for one year, appeared in two college plays and was a member of the glee club and the Mecobus Club.

HI CHATTER

By Susan Nutter

With the end of school drawing nearer and nearer, elections for Student Body officers, senior activities and the awards assembly took place this week, since finals weeks is next week.

Jon Menand was elected Student Body president; Lee Magukin, vice president; Connie Nielsen, secretary; Dave Warren, treasurer; Roger Newell, commissioner of boys athletics; Renee Vallon, commissioner of girls athletics; Mary Garcia, commissioner of publicity; Millard Martin, commissioner of traffic control (a new office), and Sally Spurr, commissioner of social affairs. Head cheerleader is Penny Stuefloten, and her assistants are Gail Fisher, Diane Redding, and Trulie Scarlett. Carol Boyd is head songleader and aiding her are Jeanne Fratessa, Robin Burnham, and Lynda Malis.

Tuesday was senior teaching day. Seniors were granted permission to take over various teachers' jobs in Carmel for a day. This is a new precedent started by this graduating class. Christine Conley, Pat Johnson, Sue Nutter, Judy Oliver, Melinda Scheffer, and Peggy Weaver taught at the elementary schools. Eric Scarlett took Mr. Warren Edwards' position as boys' vice principal, and Pat Finley, Miss Dorothy Wright's job as girls' vice principal at the high school. Don Martin took over Mrs. Jane Down's math classes, Bruce Langshaw taught Mr. Hagadorn's art classes, Betty Colman taught Mrs. Frances Davis's English classes, Willis Lyon taught Mrs. Mariquita Brey's English classes, Sam Smith replaced Mr. John Westover's science classes, Mary Osborne taught Mrs. Morlang's P.E. classes, and George Gann and Dennis Gerber shared Mr. George Mosolf's boys' gym classes.

Wednesday the seniors put on the traditional senior assembly. The theme was the Class of 1954 in 1964. Different members of the class did short acts on what they will be doing in ten years. Denny Johnson, Allen Knight and Bruce Langshaw acted as the MC's and read the senior will.

The final awards assembly was held yesterday. Coach Mosolf handed out the boys' athletic awards, and Sarah McCloud gave out the girls' athletic awards. Mrs. Elise Beaton awarded Christine Conley and Pat Finley with life CSF pins. A new CAA award, the Sportsmanship Award, was given to Frances Castrejon, a sophomore. The seniors departed from school after the assembly for their senior bar-b-que, which was held at Holman's Guest Ranch. This is a traditional affair, with the steaks or whatever, being paid for out of the class treasury.

Today is senior dress-up day. All the seniors will wear hilarious costumes to school. This always adds a great deal of festivity to the atmosphere.

Miss Dorothy Wright has invited all seniors to her home to an open house tea tomorrow. This is a very hospitable and thoughtful act on her part, and after many years has become traditional.

On Sunday, Baccalaureate services for the seniors will be held at 2:00 o'clock at the Mission, and at 3:00 o'clock at the Church of the Wayfarer. This is a serious event that has been carried on for years.

Next week the drudgery of finals will take place. The seniors will practice for their graduation ceremony on Friday morning from 8:00 to 12:00 o'clock. The sheepskins will be freely passed out that evening at Sunset Auditorium. Following graduation, there will be a celebration party put on by the class members' parents. It will be held at the Spindrift Restaurant in Monterey from 10:30 until 12:30 o'clock. Individual members of the class will top the evening off with private parties.

The final evening of the 1954 Artists at Work Series, which has been presented by the Carmel Adult School in Sunset Auditorium, will introduce on Monday at 8:00 o'clock, Ottmar F. von Fuehrer. Mr. von Fuehrer, chief staff artist at Carnegie Museum, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, will give a lecture entitled, Expedition and Exhibition, including slides and movies showing his work as an artist in a Natural History Museum. He will deal with getting material for three animal groups: from Hudson Bay for the walrus; from British Columbia for the caribou; and Arizona for a desert group; and, the subsequent work in the Museum of assembling all this material.

Mr. von Fuehrer is a native of Austria, where he attended the University and Art Academy, coming to America 25 years ago. He has been associated with Carnegie Museum ever since. His activities there are as varied as they are impressive, for, as a skilled taxidermist and naturalist, he is responsible for many of the habitat diorama of the exhibition halls. He is an explorer, photographer and linguist, as well as a lecturer, and has great technical skill as an artist. One of his most noted works is a huge diorama depicting The Rancho La Brea Tar Pits, at the Los Angeles Museum, which shows elephants, lions, bison, and saber-toothed cats common to that area 15,000 years ago.

This lecture is open to the public, and children accompanied by an adult are welcome. The series has been under the direction of Kay Rodgers.

KIPPY'S ON A JUNKET

Kippy Stuart's off on her annual "don't-know-where I'm going" vacation, which usually involves heading wherever the spirit moves. She breezed off on Tuesday, along with Mrs. D. H. Canfield, and the two admitted they had no particular destination in mind. En route to wherever they are going, they planned to stop off at Thoburn Ranch in Jamestown for a brief visit with the James Thoburns. He's a former Carmel mayor, while Mrs. Thoburn, the former Grace Wilson, is the daughter of Mrs. Philip Wilson of Carmel.

Causerie Francaise Meet Tonight

Bruno Adriani will discuss and read from the works of the poet Charles Baudelaire at tonight's meeting of La Causerie Francaise at 8:00 o'clock in the Carmel Art Gallery. Refreshments and a social hour will follow the program.

"As You Like It" Cast And In Rehearsal For Early July Production

Windermere's Fan, Green Grow the Lilacs, and a season in the Los Gatos Theater Workship under the direction of the wonderful Lilian Fontaine.

Gene Eplett, who plays the brilliant part of Touchstone, needs no introduction to Peninsula audiences. He played in Mrs. Moonlight, Joan of Lorraine, The Time of Your Life and The Man Who Came to Dinner at the Theater of the Golden Bough, in The Night of January the 16th under Lee Crowe, and just recently, as Romanville in Ring Round the Moon in the Players' Circle.

Douglas Macfarlane, who is the Duke living in banishment in the Forest of Arden, has only been in Carmel for a year. Before that he lived for many years in Europe, where he was a practising dentist. He has taken over Dr. Hughes' offices here in Carmel.

The usurping Duke Frederick is portrayed by Remo Scardigli, with a cold cruelty that belies his really kind and gentle nature. Amiens, who sings a couple of famous Shakespearean songs, is handled vocally and dramatically with ease and sureness by William Quiett, who has played before in As You Like It, but in a different role. Matthew Norman, who speaks like an Oxford graduate, but who hails from North Carolina, is an inimitable Le Beau. He attended Duke and Georgetown Universities, and is at present studying Arabic in the Army Language School.

Allen Graham, the muscled wrestler of the play, has had a varied experience, in the Jackson Street Theater in San Francisco, as a burlesque magician, and with the University Theater Group in Berkeley. Oliver, the black-hearted brother of Orlando, is played by Scott Macbeth. With such a name he should be a genuine Shakespearean actor, and judging from rehearsals he will be perfect in this pithy role. Adam is William Shepard, who played leads in the old Golden Bough on Ocean Avenue, the burning of which in 1935 was such a tragic loss to Carmel. He has since served as actor and director in many Peninsula productions, and is a player of deep sympathies. Sylvius, the lovelorn shepherd, is portrayed with rustic fervor by that sterling actor Roland Scheffler, while his elder companion, Corin, is Milton Stitt, whose record in Bert Heron's productions includes the drunken porter in Macbeth, the Sea Captain in Twelfth Night, the King in Hamlet, Ford in The Merry Wives of Windsor, Casca in Julius Caesar, and Samson in Romeo and Juliet.

Jack James, the assistant stage manager, will enact the role of William, in love with Audrey—but to no avail. Touchstone gets her.

"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players," so says Jacques. But in the case of the Forest Theater production of As You Like It, they are much more. They are part and parcel of a true community effort in one of the great arts, and this unity of purpose, combined with hard work and abundance of skills, should make a truly fine production of Shakespeare's brilliant comedy.

The setting designed by Heron, the director of the Festival, will be one of great charm, emphasizing the natural beauty of the Forest Theater. The technical work is in the hands of Charles Thomas, whose years of experience and great ability in all branches of theater work assure a smooth and vivid production. Hazel McLellan, whose outstanding costumes and properties added so greatly to the richness of Lysistrata, is already at work on As You Like It, with a group of able assistants. More women who can give some hours to cutting and sewing will be welcome, as forty costumes must be made. Stage workers are also needed to help in the countless details of a big production such as this.

Most Successful Dog Show To Date Packs Them In At Pebble Beach

Last Sunday's Del Monte Kennel Club Show at Pebble Beach was the most satisfactory ever held in its 29 years history both in size of the gate and number of entries, Derek Rayne, show chairman, said this week. He is particularly pleased since it was his last show in that capacity. In the future he will continue to be a member of the organization and cooperate in club activities, but business pressures forced him to resign as chairman.

Spectators, including Lodge guests, numbered 2500, he estimated, and there were more than 900 entries. Entries totaled one-third more than last year, and the gate was 50 per cent larger.

Best-in-show was won by a white bull terrier bitch, Ch. Tapdancer of Tartary, owned by Mrs. S. G. Yearsley of Malibu, while best local dog was a beagle, Sarah Bell, owned by May Jean and Walter Howard of Bay View Park.

Group winners were: Group 1, sporting breeds: Brittany spaniel Cherie d'Oiseau, owned by S. Roose of Mountain View; Group 1, local: English setter Flecka's Andy, Mrs. William Trotter, Monterey; Group 2, hound breeds, whippet Picardia Pollyana, Monte Long of El Sobrante; Group 2, local, beagle Sarah Bell, May Jean and Walter Howard, Bay View Park; Group 3, working breeds, German shepherd Ch. Nordraak of Matterhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Polonitza of Pasadena; Group 3, local: collie Sultan's Golden Showboy, Mr. and Mrs. William Hutton of Seaside; Group 4, terrier breeds, white bull terrier, Ch. Tapdancer of Tartary, Mrs. S. G. Yearsley of Malibu; Group 4, local: Bedlington Genal's Petite Sapphire, Berdina R. Myslik of Pacific Grove; Group 5, toy breeds: toy Manchester terrier Man Terri's Little Joie, Frank D. Housky, Monterey; Group 5, local: Manchester terrier Man Terri's Monterey Queen, Rose Housky of Monterey; Group 6, non-sporting breeds: bulldog Ch. Sir Reilly of Killarney, George E. R. Morris of San Jose; Group 6, local: Keeshonden Kee of Carmel-By-The-Sea, Mrs. Anne L. Campbell of Carmel.

Robert Van Blarcom, club secretary, reported that this year, for the first time, all the catalogues had been sold long before the judging ended about 8:00 o'clock Sunday evening.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

The techniques employed by the great dam-building agencies of our Government, the Bureau of Reclamation (which is in the Department of the Interior) and the Board of Army Engineers, in pushing their various pet projects are coming more and more clearly into the open with each passing year. Entirely apart from the conservation aspects of the situation, the taxpayers in every part of the country should be intensely interested in these schemes. Up to the present a general apathy has prevailed in regard to studying the economic factors involved but there are signs that an awakening is coming.

The newest scheme to be sprung on the people is the proposed Clearwater Dams in west-central Idaho. The Clearwater River drains into the Snake on the Idaho-Washington border at the point where Lewiston, Idaho, stands across the river from Clarkston, Washington. As these two names suggest, the Lewis and Clark Expedition of 150 years ago passed through this drainage basin both going and coming on their famous adventure. I have just been rereading the story in their Journals as edited by Bernard De Voto and so am particularly interested in the news of this coming controversy.

The new scheme, which was sprung on the people of Idaho last November 20 by the Board of Army Engineers, requires an admitted expenditure of over $300 million, and of course, judging from past experience, the costs will be at least doubled. To be sure, it is only about one-third of the cost of the Colorado River Storage Project which includes Echo Park Dam in Dinosaur National Monument, but it hits directly the interests of sportsmen and so is coming in for a great deal of attention on their part.

The National Wildlife Federation, which is the Washington office representing the interests of state and district wildlife and sportsmens' groups, has just issued a very revealing bulletin on this Clearwater Dam project. A bill has actually been introduced into Congress for the construction of this project and was referred on May 4 to the House Committee on Public Works. It was sponsored by Representative Angell of Oregon and is numbered H R 8981. The Federation is calling on all conservation-minded citizens to appeal directly to their congressmen in opposition to the bill.

It seems to be the old story of a dam, or series of dams, planned by a Government agency more or less secretly, then "sold" to local commercial groups and business interests in that part of the state on the promise of spending huge sums of money in the dam construction. The congressmen in that region naturally get behind it in order to please their constituents, then start a series of log-rolling or horse-trading activities with other congressmen sponsoring pet projects of their own. That was the identical story of the Echo Park Dam in Utah, except that the Bureau of Reclamation engineered the deal instead of the Army Engineers.

In the case of the Clearwater Dams, the National Wildlife Federation claims that because of their great height, almost 600 feet, they would almost completely destroy runs of Steelhead trout and Chinook salmon on one of the principal spawning streams of the Columbia River System. The reservoirs would also inundate the greater part of the winter range of the Clearwater elk herd, one of the largest remaining in the United States today.

These two facts should alert the sportsmen and lovers of wildlife to fight these dams as hard as the national park protectionists have been fighting the Echo Park Dam. Since the dams will back water into the Selway-Bitterroot Primitive Area, which is supposed to be inviolate, another group of wilderness enthusiasts will join forces with the wildlife groups in this Clearwater fight. This was indicated by an article in the last issue of The Living Wilderness, organ of The Wilderness Society. There seems to be a never-ending series of such struggles.

The Time Has Come .

Did you ever hear the "Gardener's alibi?" You have, but I bet you did not know that it is universal. Just poke about in your neighbor's garden and you'll hear it. Stroll into any eager gardener's paradise. To you the place is inviting, charming and you set out to admire. No chance. Your host walks beside you, usually wringing his or her hands and you will hear this. Suppose you say—

You. "My, my, the place looks lovely."

Gardener. "Oh dear, oh dear, how mistaken you are! The whole place is lousy. No bloom anywhere."

You (surprised) "Why the whole garden is full of color."

Gardener (looking at you with scorn) "It is terrible . . ."

(And here comes the gardener's alibi.)

"How wrong you are." (More wringing of hands) "If only you had come last month you would really have seen something . . . if only you will come back next month. . . ." Far, far into the night goes the gardener's alibi.

So leave us enjoy our gardens "as is" and not go fluttering about boasting of things the visitor cannot see. Do you know a slick way to start your new garden? I have a friend who used this method and now she walks among flowers. Not one cent did she expend on this new garden, she merely took advantage of obvious methods. This friend of mine lives next door to one of the show gardens of Carmel. She pined and pined for cuttings from this garden, yet she was a stranger to the next-door-owner . . . and there she was . . . shut out of paradise. Now as this friend of mine strolled past this coveted garden each day, she noticed lovely branches of shrubs and flowers peeping through the fence. Quickly she looked away from these tempting branches. At first she took her walk in broad daylight . . . later as the yearning grew stronger, she took to strolling after dark.

As though a miracle had been performed, my friend's garden suddenly bristled with cuttings! Rare and coveted pelargoniums soon gave flower. In a burst of glory her garden grew and grew until it rivalled the neighbor's garden! There was always a guilty look on my friend's face when some one admired her prowess, for the garden was really a paradise of rare flora. When asked where she had procured even cuttings of such rare species, she replied casually, "Oh, here and there."

The day came when my friend found herself face to face with her neighbor of the lovely garden. The strange lady smiled graciously at my friend, and peeping over the fence admired the new garden. The lady remarked graciously, "You have a true green thumb. I always like to see the start of a new garden."

"Thank you," stuttered my friend, trying to look innocent. The gracious lady kept smiling as she remarked, "I am sorry you did not ask for my clippers, cuttings torn from bushes never do as well as those removed from the parent bush with a sharp instrument." My friend is now called "Clippers". She and her neighbor are fast friends.

And So To London . . .

PART III

By ASTRID SISSON

Now let us walk back to the Bank and follow Queen Victoria Street to the Mansion House, erected in 1739, and now the home of the Lord Mayor of London. From its portico, I was told, heralds still proclaim the death of Britain's kings, and the coming to the throne of the new kings with the words: "The King is Dead. Long Live the King!"

From the Mansion House, Cannon Street may be followed to the top of Ludgate Hill on which stands St. Paul's Cathedral. The first St. Paul's church was founded by Ethelbert, King of Kent from 552 to 616. He was converted to Christianity by St. Augustine, and was the author of the first written Saxon laws.

This first St. Paul's burned in 1086, was rebuilt and burned again in that most disasterous of all London fires in 1666. The rebuilding of the present St. Paul's Cathedral was begun in 1675 and finished in 1710, though it was in use from 1697. Sir Christopher Wren was the designer, or architect, as we now say.

The Cathedral, standing on the summit of Ludgate Hill and visible from much of London as well as from the Thames, must have been an inspiration to all who saw it, in those early days. Later tall buildings hemmed it in until only the front of the Cathedral could be seen from the foot of the hill, and the rest by walking up to it, and then around it. An overall look at it was impossible. The war fixed that. All the buildings around it were damaged, and although the ruins were still there last Fall, they were reduced to a height which made the Cathedral visible again from the streets below as well as from the river. It received two hits, and two time-bombs were removed before they exploded, each, I was told, of a size that might have wrecked the Cathedral had it exploded. Now the damage of the two hits which was not great has been repaired, and seeing St. Paul's among all the ruins, seemingly untouched, makes one think of miracles.

Buried at St. Paul's are Lord Nelson, the Duek of Wellington and other heroes, one of them being the first citizen of the United States of America to die for England in World War II.

When I saw the Cathedral in early Spring, fog wisps were blowing in from the Thames, and trailing in and out among the columns, as if restless ghosts were doing a fantastic dance. This day was fogless but overcast. Nothing was there to detract from the beauty of the Cathedral. We stopped half way down Ludgate Hill for a last look. From that distance, the double row of columns, one above the other, and the two towers above them, one at each corner, with the central dome topped by its golden cross, made a picture of unforgettable beauty.

We continued down the hill to Ludgate Circus (all these London circuses are circles), and crossed into Fleet Street, London's newspaper row, and sometimes called "The Street of Ink" by the Londoners.

Fleet Street begins at Ludgate Circus and ends at the approach to Waterloo Bridge, and from there is called the Strand. We spent several rewarding hours in Fleet Street. Narrow alleys run between many of the buildings, some leading nowhere, others ending in little courts as old as the street. The Cheshire Cheese is here, a tavern as popular with the men today as it was in the days of Dickens and Dr. Johnson. Escorted women are welcome and should stop for refreshments, if only to see the place. One of the guests showed us around, and gave us a quick review of its history.

The other side of the street should not be neglected. Here also are to be found odds and ends of interest that together help to make a more complete picture of the history of the street. A plaque is on one of the buildings in memory of Edgar Wallace, who started writing his famous books while a newspaper man in Fleet Street.

There are many little restaurants in the courts and along the street, and should it be breakfast or lunch or tea time, it would be well to try a meal in one of them, one never knows what or who may turn up. These little places are devoid of frills, and the meals very reasonable. They are the places where people employed on the street drop in for a quick bite.

If one turns right on Chancery Lane, Lincoln's Inn is on this street to the left. This is now one of the four courts of London. It goes its name from the Earl of Lincoln who was the owner during the reign of Edward II. The Royal Court of Justice on Fleet Street is a block of fine Gothic buildings well worth seeing too. Other sights along Fleet Street are two old churches and Temple Bar, said to be one of the original thirteen gates of old London.

The Strand originally ran along the Thames, hence its name. Now it is a good block away, and the street along the river is called the Victoria Embankment. The Strand is a street of hotels and theaters. The Savoy Hotel is here, one of London's best, as is the Savoy Theater where the first Gilbert and Sullivan operettas were produced. In the neighborhood is Drury Lane, where I mentioned earlier, we saw The King and I. At Christmas children's plays are produced at Drury Lane, mostly of the fairy-tale variety that are beloved by children the world over. Attending these plays is as much a part of Christmas to a London child as plum pudding and presents.

Other famous theaters are the Lyceum, the Adelphi, the Gaiety and others without number.

Covent Garden is within easy walking-distance of the Strand. This is London's fruit, vegetable and flower market. Covent Garden Theater is here and should be seen.

Bow Street either runs past or stops at Covent Garden; my notes are not too clear on this. Anyway, seeing the name reminded me of Saint-Mary-le-Bow, or Bow Church on Cheapside near St. Paul's, dating from the second half of the 17th century, and famous for its lofty spire as well as for its bells. The Londoners will tell you that only those who were born within the sound of the Bow-Bells are true Cockneys.

The Strand ends in Trafalgar Square, from there one may walk to Whitehall Street, one block from the Strand on the Square, or walk down to the Embankment and follow the river to the Houses of Parliament, and so continue the sightseeing. We were rather weary and chose to take a bus to Chelsea, which is London's Bohemia, and one of the many picturesque towns within Greater London. On the way we passed the Royal Hospital.

Chelsea has gay little houses and squares, and many a young artist on his way to fame has his studio here, and exhibits and sells his work in the small galleries within the village. It is a quiet place with greens and benches, and children playing in the squares, and numerous little shops and restaurants. Beyond Chelsea lies the Science Museum, the National History Museum, Victoria and Albert Museum, and Albert Hall, which seats 8,000 and is said to have the largest organ in the world. It is a real event to attend a concert there.

Our next sightseeing trip started from Piccadilly Circus, the approximate center of Central London. It is like the hub of a wheel, the spokes of which are five of London's important streets, Regent Street, which has a bend to it like a fine bow, and Lower Regent Street, ending in Pall Mall. These are the most beautiful. Piccadilly Street is between them, and Shaftburry Avenue and Coventry Street make the five. There is another street ending in Piccadilly Circus, which seems to have no standing with the Londoners; this is Glasshouse Street.

ON HIS OWN SHOULDERS

A bird is tamed when a wing is broken,
The fleetest brute is enslaved and taken
When his feet are snared in a fast tether;
They molt and grow lean, renouncing kingdoms.

But man, the first primate, mends his pinions,
Inheritor between hell and heaven,
On his own shoulders he heaves from pitfalls,
His habitat is a far country.

While he licks his wounds he tends a vision,
He turns new arms in retreat and defeat,
At death the high spark beckons his fellow
On the slow straight steep to each man's dreaming.

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT

SUN-HOOFS

Beyond this pinto called a clock
Another rhythm hoofs the air:
Astride the sun like a saddle,
Riding round a riddle,
Mozart laughs at every weathercock.

He picks the tune surpassing tunes
And saddles it to centuries
For any eager rider;
Yes, a high provider,
Galloping beyond this noon of noons.

—OTHELIA LILLY

TO THE YOUNG POETS

Give me a poem that leads up to thought
And is not downed by wordage nor by rhyme.
Clean let it be, and exquisitely wrought
And with a tone both sturdy and sublime.
There should be vision elevating sight
Beyond the close horizons of the day,
And over vision something swift as flight
As though a god had walked upon the way.
Such when I read, brings peace both grave and still;
Delights the mind, restores the spirit's joy
And fills the world of thought like bells intoned.
That which impells the words, beyond the skill,
Beyond whatever means the lines employ
Then speaks unstayed, directly to its own.

Review Of Carousel

By KIPPY STUART

Friday night the Wharf Theater opened its doors for the first performance of Carousel. The evening was in the nature of a double-header, for after the performance, the audience was invited to attend a reception to honor the two directors of the Wharf Theater, Thomas Brock and Robert Carson. It took courage for these two innately modest young gentlemen, when summoned to the footlights, to bear up beneath the thunder of applause, and to be presented with two intriguing packages, gifts of the Wharf Theater's Board of Directors. The consensus of opinion was, "Well done, Tom and Bob, may your future prowess equal your past and present achievements." Host and hostess of the reception were Alex and Dee Olivetti.

Carousel opened with a brilliant scene of all cast on stage. In pantomime, a country fair of long ago gathered speed. Nick Le Feuvre as stage designer, and Walt Scott in charge of lighting effects, did themselves proud. Nick invented carousel and Ferris wheel and all the country fair trappings. Into this melee dashed Bonnie Wager, on wing-ed toes, accompanied by stalwart boatswains and away went the Carousel waltz. The chorus was well organized under the musical direction of Frank Hill and choreography by Joanne Nix. Mrs. Nix may have an orchid all for herself for the achievement of her star pupils.

Angelo Rodriguez, in the role of Billy Bigelow, dominated the evening. Angelo's voice makes one's scalp tingle with delight, and his acting ability is outstanding. Seldom are these two qualities found in one person. Soon Angelo will be separated from the Army, and we are all looking forward to his future achievements in Hollywood. There is a great career waiting for this young man who has brought so much pleasure to local audiences. Jeanne Dam played opposite Rodriguez, giving a credible performance. Jeanne is gifted with wistfulness and sweet simplicity, and she brings sincerity to each of her many roles. Her voice has a tender, ethereal quality that is appealing. She fitted well into the role of Julie Jordan.

Pat Daugherty played the amusing part of Enoch Snow, the comedy relief of Carousel. Pat is packed with personality. He does not even need to sing to win the audience, yet when he does really get going, his voice is something to write home about. Florence Keaton gave her usual robust performance. Florence has a great voice, and being full of mischief as she is, there she goes, cast as Nettie Fowler. One of the outstanding performances was given by Earl Neel, cast as the tough guy, Jigger. Earl looked as though he had just stepped in from the waterfront, and here again, personality won acclaim. Earl can sing, too. He all but brought the rafters down in the sailor's hornpipe, "Blow High, Blow Low." Joy Wilkinson is a newcomer to the Wharf Theater and is definitely an addition to the cast. She carried much of the performance on her own shoulders and her several singing numbers were well received. All Norma DiMaggio, in the character of Mrs. Mullins, had to do was to look beautiful, which she achieved with eclat. Don Spruance, the only professional dancer in the cast, won spontaneous applause.

Don't miss the production, Carousel, at the Wharf Theater. The familiar music will delight you and your evening will be well spent.

Horne-Albee Wedding Plans

While her fiance, Bill Albee, is immersed in finals at Stanford, Barbara Lee Horne of Carmel Valley is deep in preparations for their wedding, just a fortnight away.

The young couple, who met at Carmel High School, will be married at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 19, at Carmel Mission, with Msgr. Michael D. O'Connell presiding. The wedding reception will be held at the Carmel Valley Inn.

Barbara, daughter of the Frederick Hornes, has chosen her eldest sister, Mary Eleanor, to be her maid of honor. Her other sister, Diana, will be a bridesmaid. Mary is working in San Francisco, while Diana is a student at Stanford. Completing the coterie of bridal attendants will be Nolinda Wells of Beverly Hills, a former Kappa sorority sister of Barbara's at UCLA; Suzanne Smith, a former Carmelite now attending U.C. in Berkeley; and Jo Evelyn Albee of Carmel, the groom's sister.

Bill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Albee, Sr., of Carmel, receives his Bachelor of Arts degree from Stanford in commencement exercises next weekend. He's been in the school of mechanical engineering, and has served as president of the university's branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He has asked a fellow Stanford student, Jack Davidson of Chicago, to be his best man at the wedding. The ushers, Stanford men all, will be Frederick Manual of Pasadena, John Kroeger of Fullerton, Bill Manion of Santa Monica, and Peter Lyon of Carmel.

Following the wedding the couple will head for their new home in Seattle, where Bill has a position as engineer for Boeing Aircraft. Before settling down to househunting, they plan to enjoy a ten-day holiday traveling around the northwest and British Columbia.

Second Grade Picnic Tuesday

Sunset School's second grade will have its annual pre-vacation picnic next Tuesday up Carmel Valley, with mothers invited to come along and join the fun. Shepherding the flock of 24 kids will be second grade teacher Mrs. Edna Lockwood, who'll be retiring this month after 25 years at the school.

Following the picnic lunch, which will take place somewhere by the river, the kids will be in for a real treat. B. L. Clark has invited them all for a visit at his training stables at Los Laureles, where he'll have several of his beautifully-schooled trick horses perform.

Sandpipers' Farewell Party

The Sandpipers modified their usual Thursday evening square dance program last week to honor one of their callers, Lou Canarroe, who was leaving shortly to spend the summer in Colorado. The group, which meets Thursday evenings at Carmel High School, is under the direction of Jeanette and Sterling Hall.

Carmel Girls Get AAs

Three Carmel girls received their Associate in Arts degrees Monday in commencement exercises at Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri.

They are Beverly Anne Wood, daughter of Mrs. Vernon D. Wood; Shirley Frances Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Johnson; and Nancy Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce J. Bacon.

The Childers Back from Nevada

Mr. and Mrs. Charile Childers are back at work after a May holiday in Las Vegas, where they spent a long and lazy week mostly relaxing and getting the winter chill out of their bones. Nevada's 100-degree-plus sunshine proved almost too much of a good thing, however; after getting used to the desert heat, the return to Carmel's crisp climate affected Charlie and Maud like a dip into a deep-freeze.

Their stay at the desert spa was enlivened by participation in the Elks' annual Hell Dorado celebration, which included daily parades and nightly rodeos and entertainment. And Charlie, a good Rotarian, also found time to visit meetings of two Nevada chapters of his club.

New Role for Mary Burr

Former Carmelite Mary Burr, who has made a name for herself in ballet and musical comedy, has just scored a notable success in her offstage role as Mrs. Don Marsh: she's the mother of a fine set of twins. The babies, one boy and one girl, were born May 26 in New York City, and they've been named Anthony and Christine.

Shortly after leaving Carmel Mary joined the famed Ballet Theatre, later danced in such musicals as The King and I in New York and the touring company of Paint Your Wagon. It was in London, during the run of the latter show, that she met the English actor Don Marsh; they were married just after the show closed, took a honeymoon tour around Europe, and last September returned to New York to make their home. Forced temporarily to give up dancing, Mary brushed up on her typing and shorthand and landed a job as secretary in the U.N., where she worked until May 17, and filled up her spare time with acting lessons.

Don, meantime, has been busy with acting engagements in addition to television work. Mary's mother has come up from her home in Maryland to help with the twins. And Mary herself is planning on resuming her career in ballet as soon as small Chris and Tony permit.

Annual Nursery School Picnic

The day was grey and chilly, but the four fires burning on the beach at the foot of Thirteenth Street on May 23 brightened circles of white sand and warmed the toes of some 100 parents and children (when they sat still) at the annual picnic of the Carmel Parent Nursery School.

Before festivities really started, two important pots were set to brewing, one hot and one cold.

Don Doner, an artist with both the brush and the frying pan, had charge of the former object for the evening. Inside it sizzled hamburger mixed with herbs grown in Don's own garden, and ladled onto hot, buttered French bread. Dr. Talcott Bates and Jack Dixon "chefed" while Don relaxed. The cold pot was concocted by Abe Sheingold, a magic name to those of us who have tasted the results of his handiwork.

Cake, in celebration of Mizzy Lewis' birthday, was served by her mother, Mrs. Conrad Lewis. However, Mizzy was too busy sliding down the cliff sides with 50 other friends wearing out her birthday suit (both of them), to bother about such trifles as ice cream, cake, and soda pop.

Salads were provided by Rosa Doner, Nona Torras, Evelyn Lewis, Peggy Bates, and Jane Vial.

Sierrans Scale Cone Peak

Sunday morning bright and early, 23 hikers gathered at Nacimiento Summit for an ascent of Cone Peak, rearing its rocky summit seven miles to the north.

This peak, which reaches an elevation of 5148 feet three miles from the ocean, is the highest point in the outer Santa Lucia Range and commands a spectacular view. Most of the group had managed to find camping space the night before at nearby forest service camp grounds, which were all filled to capacity with the holiday crowds. The climb was made over a forest service road and zigzag trail, up to the fire lookout on top, which was reached in time for lunch.

In addition to the dramatic view, many wild flowers, the rare Santa Lucia fir growing in the rocky crags near the summit, and sugar pines, found at only one other place in this range, added to the interest of the visit. While some of the visitors returned home via Jolon and the San Antonio Mission, the others returned by way of the coast highway, stopping to visit beautiful Limekiln Canyon. This highway is now bright with blossoms of the yellow bush lupine, and yuccas are coming into bloom on the higher slopes. Local people making the trip were Margaret Jensen of Monterey, Watt De Rome of Pacific Grove and Femont Ballou of Carmel, leader of the trip which was sponsored by the Loma Prieta Chapter (San Jose) of the Sierra Club.

Mr. Calley Takes a Bride

Ernest Calley, who retired last year after more than 25 years as shop instructor at Sunset School, Friday morning claimed as his bride the former Mrs. Phyllis Enoch, a Carmel craftswoman and artist.

The pair exchanged vows in the chambers of Municipal Judge Ray Baugh in Monterey. Present at the ceremony were their mutual friends Mr. and Mrs. Nick Crookston and Jack Nixon of Carmel.

Friday afternoon, over 50 well-wishers gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Buckman in Carmel for a reception in honor of the new Mr. and Mrs. Calley. Among the guests were many faculty members of Carmel schools and friends of the Calleys' from the Carmel Crafts Guild, of which they both are members.

The Calleys plan to alternate their time between a Carmel home on Monte Verde Street and the small house built by Mr. Calley near Palo Colorado Canyon. They are also planning on a trip into the Sierra sometime during the summer.

The new Mrs. Calley has spent much of her life abroad, having been raised and schooled in England and subsequently living in India, France and Argentina. Just a year ago she came to Carmel from England, and since that time has become active in arts and crafts circles here.

Mr. Calley helped train two generations of local youngsters both in his work at the school and in the various youth activities in which he has been a leader. Among these are the annual Kite Festival and the Junior Audubon Club. Since his retirement, he has continued his work as instructor in the Carmel Adult School.

Van Ostrand-Arnett Wedding

In a quiet home wedding Saturday afternoon, Robert T. van Ostrand of Carmel took as his bride the former Marguerite Rhys Arnett of Pacific Grove. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Carelton Whitehead of the Church of Religious Science.

Standing with the couple were Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hawthorne of Carmel. Also present were the bride's mother, Mrs. Marguerite Davies of Pacific Grove, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Davies of Richmond.

The new Mr. and Mrs. van Ostrand spent a brief honeymoon in San Francisco, and are now getting established in a new home in Pacific Grove. The bride is a secretary at Monterey High School, while Mr. van Ostrand is in business as a painting contractor.

Anniversary Waltz

The Flares and Squares had their bi-weekly dance party Saturday night at Masonic Hall, with over twoscore members showing up in holiday mood to contribute to a lavish potluck supper and an evening of energetic folk dancing.

The occasion also served as a surprise party for Lloyd and Ramona Weer, who were celebrating their wedding anniversary. Paul McKinstry presented the anniversary cake, an angelfood confection wreathed in flowers and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The Weers, bashfully submitting to the group request, led off the dancing with the anniversary waltz.

Dancing continued on into the night, with Dick Bennett, Marge Marshall, Iris Down and Sterling Hall calling the figures for the various squares and rounds.

Shower for Carlene Daniels

A dessert party and shower honoring Carlene Daniels, whose marriage to Erik Short will take place June 26 at All Saints' Church, will be held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Cecil Murphree, a long-time friend of the bride-elect and her family. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Glen Cayler of Pacific Grove and Mrs. Edward Bivins of Monterey.

Carlene's mother, Mrs. Carl Daniels, and Joan Daniels, who's to be her sister's maid of honor at the wedding, have been invited to the party, as have the future benedict's mother, Mrs. Marie Short, and his sisters, Mrs. John Short and Mrs. Neil Weston. Others invited include Mrs. Ann Byers and her daughter Carole, Mrs. Clyde Glover and her daughters, Diane and Barbara (Mrs. Randy Emlay), Mrs. Arthur Sutton, Mrs. Ray Sutton, Mrs. Stanley Sutton, Mrs. Norman Hansen and her daughter Mrs. William Agee, Mrs. Lyn Daniels and her daughter Mrs. Louise Madison, Mrs. Myrl McArthur, Mrs. Dode Davis, Mrs. Jack Marshall, Mrs. Arthur Wise, Mrs. Paul Raymond, Mrs. Charles Frost, Mrs. Horace Dormody, Mrs. Enda Espy, Mrs. Kay Nakamura, Mrs. Floyd Adams, Mrs. Edward Viall, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. George Loorz and her two daughters-in-law, Mrs. William Loorz and Mrs. Don Loorz. Sending gifts but unable to attend in person will be Mrs. George Woolsey of Los Angeles and Mrs. Lee Perry of Santa Barbara.

Still another shower for Carlene will be given in the near future by Carole Byers, who is to be one of her bridesmaids. Week before last, Mrs. Short entertained a large group of friends at a "cup shower" honoring her future daughter-in-law.

Twisselmans' Third

Latest addition to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Twisselman of Jacks Peak is a baby daughter, born May 27 at Peninsula Community Hospital. The chubby little girl, a seven pound, seven-plus ouncer, has been named Deborah, and she's the Twisselmans' third. They also have a four-year-old son, Sherman, and another girl, Linda Joanne, two and a half.

In addition to Sherman and Linda, who have found their small sibling quite enchanting, Deborah has also been welcomed by a large group of local relatives. They include her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Anita Sherman, and a great-grandfather, Gary Sherman, both of Jacks Peak; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Fullington of Monterey, and great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Roberts of Pacific Grove; and an aunt, Mrs. William Howder, of Pacific Grove.

Music-Swim Party

Music and swimming students at the studio of Mrs. Ralph Weston combined their talents Sunday afternoon in the performance of a water ballet and a musicale. Families, friends and guests of the teen-aged students attended the program, which was followed by refreshments. Nadya to New York

Leaving today for points east is Nadya Erbe, who plans an extended stay in New York City and possibly a trip to Europe either this fall or next spring. Nadya's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Erbe, and her sister Xenia Klotz saw her off today for Laguna Beach, where she will visit for a few days with friends before taking a plane for the east. She also plans to stop over in South Bend, Indiana, before settling down in New York City.

Earlier this week Nadya said her goodbyes to friends at the Wharf Theatre, where she has been associated with several recent productions. A small farewell dinner in her honor was given Wednesday evening by Jeanne Dam, star of the current Wharf musical show Carousel; Jeanne and Nadya played together in the last Wharf musical, Brigadoon. While in the east Nadya hopes to run into former Wharf players Jean Levinson and Mary Buckner, both of whom have joined stock companies for the summer.

all around the room showing the life and works of Dr. Albert Schweitzer. These were of great interest to our class in our study of Africa.

Near the exit was a copy of the Rosetta stone, the key which revealed the secrets of ancient hieroglyphics to the archeologists. This and many other things such as mummies and shrunken heads, made our trip to the museum very interesting. —Nancy Lofton

The Glee Club of Sunset School is sponsoring a sign for Sunset School. With the $11.30 they have from dues, which is in the Monterey Trust and Savings Bank, they plan to have a sign built. It will be constructed by Mr. Weise, shop teacher. It will be three feet across and six inches thick, just like the high school one. The Glee Club's teacher is Mr. Arthur Holman and the president is Polly Gann. The treasurer is Katie Fry.

Macks Entertain Family

The dog show plus the Memorial Day Holiday brought a small family reunion to the home of the Harold Macks last weekend. Visiting over the holiday were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mack, Jr., and their dog (which was entered in the show), and their daughter, Elizabeth, who came down from San Francisco.

Mrs. Scholefield

Mrs. Madaline Geneva Scholefield, a resident of Carmel for nearly five years, died Tuesday in a local hospital after an extended illness.

She was born February 22, 1895, in Buffalo, Wyoming, and before coming to Carmel had made her home in San Francisco and later in Whittier. She was a member of the Carmel Mission parish.

She leaves her husband, Crighton W. Scholefield of Carmel; two daughters, Mrs. Virginia Madaline Warren of Whittier and Anne Barbara Scholefield of San Francisco; two sons, Crighton W. Scholefield, Jr., of Los Angeles and Kenneth Joseph Scholefield of Maywood; and four grandchildren.

Requiem Mass was celebrated yesterday morning at Carmel Mission, with burial in the Monterey Catholic Cemetery.

Gill Thanks Voters

I thank the many thousands of Monterey County voters who have given me their personal time and listened courteously to my platform as a write-in candidate for Superior Court Judge. I wish I could meet each one personally. Your writing in my name for Superior Court Judge next Tuesday will be appreciated, based on my qualifications not only as an "experienced lawyer" but an active courtroom lawyer in all branches of law and in all Courts.

Mrs. C. Maloney

Mrs. Charlotte Maloney, vice-president of the McClatchy Newspapers and a part-time resident of Carmel for several years, died this week at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco following an operation.

Mrs. Maloney was the daughter of the late Charles K. McClatchy, editor and owner of the McClatchy Newspapers, and wife of James H. Maloney, retired supervisor of the Alcoholic Tax Unit. The couple had been dividing their time between San Francisco and their home in Carmel.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Maloney is survived by a sister, Eleanor McClatchy, president of the McClatchy Newspapers, and two sons, J. Brown Maloney of Sacramento and Martin Maloney of Carmel.

Funeral arrangements are pending in Sacramento.

Amelia Feil

Mrs. Amelia Helene Feil, housekeeper and school cafeteria director at Carmel Mission for the past 10 years, died suddenly of a heart attack while at work Saturday afternoon. She was 60.

Mrs. Feil was a native of Chillocothe, Ohio, and made her home here at Seventh Avenue and San Carlos Street.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Helene Knodel of Columbus, Ohio; two brothers, Russell Uhrig of Vallejo and Robert Uhrig of Detroit; and four sisters, Catherine Uhrig of El Centro, Isabel Johnson of San Lorenzo, Elizabeth Grady of San Diego and Margaret Spears of Columbus, Ohio.

Mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at Carmel Mission, and Rosary recited Monday with the Very Rev. Msgr. Michael D. O'Connell officiating. Burial will be at Columbus, Ohio.

FAMILY DO AT SILVAS

"San Fernando Bill" Silva, his wife Gloria, their small daughter June and the family poodle spent the holiday weekend here at the home of Bill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Silva. On Sunday, the younger Silvas eschewed the beach in favor of a look at the Del Monte Dog Show, were impressed by the fancy pooches with hyphenated names, but remained loyal to their personality pup all the same. Bill, Gloria et al braved the traffic Sunday evening to return to their home in the south.

FOURTH GIRL FOR COOKS

Beckee Sue is the fresh-sounding name Major and Mrs. Daniel G. Cook have chosen for their fourth daughter, who made her debut May 27 at Peninsula Hospital.

Doll-sized Beckee—she weighed in at six pounds, 14 ounces—met with the immediate approval of her older sisters when she arrived at home on Memorial Day. The three other girls, nine year old Marsha, eight year old Cheryl, and three year old Dorbea, were also born here. Here for Beckee's homecoming were Major Cook, down from his post at the Presidio in San Francisco, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Emily Jordan of Carmel. Her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cook, make their home in Montgomery, Alabama.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The importance of understanding God and man from the standpoint of spiritual causation will be stressed at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon "God the Only Cause and Creator" will include the following passage from the King James Version of the Bible:

"For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited; I am the Lord; and there is none else" (Isaiah 45:18).

Among the citations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following will be read: "Jesus of Nazareth was the most scientific man that ever trod the globe. He plunged beneath the material surface of things, and found the spiritual cause" (313:23-26).

The Golden Text is from Revelation: "Thou are worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (4:11).

The Needler

by Beth

As this column is to be a weekly feature, we have been culling our brains to think of a suitable title for it. The Needler we consider the best to date, but we are still in the market for suggestions. Any ideas?

Lou Nicoud swears that last Saturday, about noon, he saw a man leading a llama up Ocean Avenue. He says it must have been a llama because it was too large for a dog and too small for a horse; it had a long neck but it was shorter than a giraffe's, and a face like a camel but no humps on its back. So, he says, it must have been a llama. Now, we'll admit that you can see almost everything in Carmel on a crowded weekend—but Lou—REALLY!

A lady (and a scholar) who has lived in Carmel for many years has a carved motto from the Latin on her door. Her visitors invariably ask what it means and she gives a translation to fit each guest. One woman, who is an ash-scatterer, was told that it means "scattering ashes is a very bad habit."

With the June bride season upon us, it is interesting to note that during the last week in May there were 10 marriages of Peninsula couples and only three applications for divorce. Understand this is below state average.

Toby Street tells us that the other day he was in one of our grocery stores waiting to have his purchases checked when a woman rushed up to the clerk with an avocado in her hand and asked to have it plugged to see if it was ripe.

A little boy we know is approaching his 11th birthday and his heart is set on a puppy. He has a dog house all ready and a fenced-in-yard. If anyone knows of a pup (male) who will be not too big and not too small but just right, kindly phone 2-4338 or 7-3939. We know he will have a good home, and we have a feeling that somewhere in town there must be a puppy who is looking for just such a little boy.

Carol Brown recalls that when she was walking along a street in Durban, South Africa, she saw a diaper service conveyance which bore the legend "Rock-A-Dry-Baby." The small truck was a three-wheeled affair. Three-wheeled trucks for three-cornered pants?

Down on Fisherman's Wharf the other day, an obviously out-of-town visitors was leaning over a large bucket of clams and peering at them intently. "Are these Coo-Coo clams?" she asked. "No, ma'm," the fish market man replied. "Theyre strictly fresh."

The McCarthy hearings, which are rivaling Barnum's Greatest Show On Earth has everybody getting into the act. Even Dennis The Menace, Hank Ketcham's rascal, made the airwaves on Tuesday when Senator Ralph Flanders compared the junior senator from Wisconsin to him. "Can it be that our Dennis, so effective in making trouble for his elders, has at last gotten into trouble himself?" he asked.

Never saw so much traffic in town as over last weekend. A friend reports that, returning from the dog show at Pebble Beach, and making the turn onto Ocean from San Antonio, it took her a full fifteen minutes to make the drive from there to San Carlos.

Lucius Beebe, publisher of Virginia City's Territorial Enterprise, and often considered a professional esthete himself, is crying his eyes out editorially over the fear that a fate worse than death may hit that town on the Comstock Lode if something isn't done to stop the "migration of crackpots, soul-searchers, pseudo-intellectuals, chronic malcontents, hysterical neurotics, phony 'characters' and extroverts who are forever discovering more enlightened villages . . ." Look what happened to Carmel, his burning pen screams in effect. Reminds me of that wonderful Steig cartoon — "Who are all those others?"

Heard from a friend who heard it from a friend who heard it from a friend that a Pebble Beach resident has invited Haille Selassie to visit the Peninsula while he is in this country, and that he is seriously considering including such a visit in his itinerary.

Miss Rainer's Seventh Grade

IN BLOOM

The flowers that bloom in the garden green
Are beautiful, queenly and serene.
The pansies with their little faces
Often look like gambling aces.
A tulip with her high-held head
Is often seen in shades of red.
The queenly golden daffodil
Sits alone on the window sill.
The rose that is in many sonnets
Often trims the ladies' bonnets.
These are the flowers that beggar prose:
The pansy, daffodil and the rose.

—Mary Elstob

OUR VISIT TO MR. DICKENSON'S HOUSE

The class left Sunset School at 2:20 o'clock and we arrived at Mr. Dickenson's house at 2:30 in the afternoon. When we got there we saw a quiet, quaint little house surrounded by beautiful flowers, plants and trees. We were welcomed at the door by a jolly-looking man and politely asked to come in. He took us into his living room and we all noticed at first the beautiful and fierce animal heads on the walls. Then we all gathered around and sat down to listen.

Mr. Dickenson showed us on a map in his diary where he had been in Africa. Then he pointed out the animal heads which almost completely covered the walls. There were heads of lions, wart hog wildebeest, leopards, gazelles, cheetas, reed buck and water buck. Miss Rainer asked him about the Mau Maus and he told us of many thrilling experiences with these natives.

Next he took us up to the attic to show some other things. When we got there he showed us some poisoned arrows, African drums, beaded clothing and jewelry. After this we all thanked Mr. Dickenson for the lovely time and he asked us to come again sometime. We found our parents' cars waiting for us and were safely taken back to school by 3:30 in the afternoon.

MUSEUM TRIP

All six of our cars arrived in San Jose a little after 10:00 o'clock Tuesday morning. We lined up in partners in front of the Rosicrucian Egyptian Museum. Then we went in, climbed up a large stairway and found ourselves in a large room covered with ancient Egyptian relics.

The guide took us in the full-sized replica of the Temple of Memphis. This is an exact replica of an ancient Egyptian temple at sunrise. The temple had no roof and the ceiling of the museum is made up to look like the sky at sunrise. It is dark inside but lightens as you are in it as if the sun were really rising.

Another interesting model is the only life-size replica of a rock tomb of the feudal age of Egypt. The tomb looks as if it is really carved out of rock, the entrance being a doorway just large enough for you to walk through. You enter and walk through a winding corridor, lit by a solitary torch and leading to a small room with a rough rock floor. The room is dimly lit by a few torches and has in it two statues, one of the body in the tomb and one of the God of Death. At the end of the little room is a door, behind which the body is placed. The door is sealed, never to be opened again.

Next to the entrance of the tomb is a beautifully sculptured bust of an Egyptian queen, Nefertete. There is quite a beautiful story behind this statue.

In a glass case is a cut-away view of a pyramid belonging to Cheops, one of the Pharohs of ancient Egypt. This model shows all the rooms and passages in the pyramid and the ingenious way of air ventilation and lighting.

In one room, called the Art Gallery, there are large photographs
